State Police at Work.

State Policeman Robert T. Hurley of Hartford and Deputy Sheriff John H. Fitts of Hampton have been carefully investigating the case, and it is hinted that they have sufficient evidence to firmly fasten the crime on Dorous and Mrs. Lambert who had been living with Dorous, it is alleged. "Eph" has had a pretty scaly reputation for a long time, although he has never before been arrested for as serious a crime. He strictly maintains a stiff upper lip and vouchsafes nothing relating to the entire affair, after repeated questioning by the officials and the coroner.

On the other hand, it is said that Mrs. Lambert has wegged her tongue a mite, even making a number of damaging admissions, and the Watson woman also is alleged to have been somewhat communicative about some somewhat communicative about some of the happenings that transpired at the Dorous shack on the night preceding the finding of the dead body of Mr. Neff.

Woman's Incriminating Admissions. The Lambert woman, it was hinted, has admitted that she herself washed articles of clothing belonging to herself, Derous and Neff following the light that occurred, and it is believed that from the time that Neff was knocked over the head with something about 2 oclock in the attention of Bloodstained Garments. During his investigation State Policeman Hurley found a waist and a skirt at Jared Wade's, where Miss Watson was employed, that were bloodstained, and it is said that after this evidence was found that the Watson woman broke down and told exactly what here was at the Porce. setly what happened at the Dorous domicite.

Sunday Mrs. Lambert, it is said admitted having taken away Neff's money with the assistance of Dorous, and displayed $5 that had belonged to him. The Watson woman retains to the present day signs of the fight that took place with Neff, having quite an abrugion on the back of the head, a superficial wound. Dorous and the Lambert woman are both accused on the charge of robbery, the charge alleging that $13.10 was taken.

Neff's Body Exhumed. Sunday Coroner A. C. Bill of Dan-ielson went to Hampton with Dr. Louis I. Mason of this city, and the body of Neff was exhumed by Deputy Sheriff Fitts and his brother, George
